LANE CHANGES COLLISIONS

A very dangerous maneuver on the road is a lane change. Semis have several blind spots that make the lane change dangerous. If you're involved in an accident while making a lane change is very possible the police officer will find you at fault and cite you for an unsafe lane change. Common occurrences of unsafe lane changes include:

- Swerving between two lanes;
- Failing to signal before making a lane change;
- Failing to look and see if anyone else is in the lane before merging;
- Cutting other vehicles off;
- Being split between two lanes;
- Falling asleep at the wheel; and
- Failing to check a blind spot.

Always double check your mirrors and don't start a lane change until you're sure you can safely do so.
